Overview and Background of the Unit

The Nuremberg project is part of an historical film studies class that I have written on World War II. The inclusion of the film Nuremberg and the examination of its historical accuracy are a vital part of the ultimate goal for the class. Much of what Americans know about history, unfortunately, comes from their exposure to “Hollywood” films. Introducing the students to original documentation and oral histories, or transcripts of such histories, will assist them in evaluating the film’s accuracy and, ultimately, the process undertaken in the Military Tribunal commonly known as the Nuremberg Trials. In the process of evaluating the film, it is my intent to refine the students’ abilities to analyze, synthesize and evaluate historical documents.

The Lessons of the Unit

1. Evaluating Holocaust-Related Websites

Day one will be spent examining a Holocaust website as a class activity. The teacher will guide the students through series of steps to determine the authenticity and legitimacy of the website. The next day will be spent in small groups examining a Holocaust website. This lesson will take 2 class periods to complete.

2. Readings on Nuremberg

Using materials from Facing History and Ourselves, the students will be confronted with issues about obedience to orders, the rules of war, and the establishment of international standards. A careful examination of the readings will provide much to discuss for the weeklong lesson. Having wrestled with these issues, the students will be prepared to analyze Nazi documents used in the military tribunal and, hopefully, draw conclusions about the benefits or international law and standards.

3. Nuremberg: Film Review

After spending 3 class periods viewing the film, the students will write a 1-2 page review discussing the accuracy, or inaccuracy, of the film. As a basis for determining accuracy, the students will refer to transcript documents found online, transcripts from Interrogations by Richard Overy, the oral histories found in Witness to Nuremberg by Bruce A. Stave and Michele Palmer and information found in The Anatomy of the Nuremberg Trials by Telford Taylor. This lesson may be completed in 4 – 5 class periods.

4. The Case Against the Defendant

Having viewed the HBO film Nuremberg and determined its accuracy, the students examine the evidence available about a select defendant. Having determined the charges levied against the defendant, the students will construct an opening statement for the trial against the defendant or write a journalist's columns or radio broadcasts covering the case. This lesson occurs the third week of a four-week unit on Nuremberg in a semester film class on World War 2. Prior to beginning the unit the students will have learned how to analyze primary sources and websites. This lesson will take 5-7 class periods to complete if all work is done in class or 3 class periods if the research is conducted outside of the classroom

5. Examination of the USHMM Website

Using the information on the website, the students will examine the opening statement of General Telford Taylor. Having read the statement, they will select a "medical experiment" to research and prepare a ten-minute presentation for their classmates outlining the "experiment", those involved, and the sentences handed to the defendants. This lesson will take 5 class periods to complete.

Evaluating Holocaust-Related Websites

Adapted from materials prepared by David Klevan, USHMM

Identify the source and assess its credibility.

Recognize the domain name of the site.

- .gov is U.S. government
- .mil is U.S. military
- .edu is an accredited post-secondary educational institution
- .com is a commercial, for-profit entity
- .org is a non-commercial, non-profit entity
- .net is a computer network, particularly and Internet-related network
- .int is an international organization
- .il, .de, .at, .ca, etc. are country identifiers; frequently preceded by .co
(.il is Israel for instance)

Be aware that many colleges and universities restrict server space to professors and students but that some do not. Some allow alumni and others to use their server. Also be aware of the fact that there is often a difference between the quality of student-based and professor-based products.

While “.gov” domain type denotes the information contained in the site is a product of a U.S. government office remember that some sources may have their own agenda. Usually, however, they are of high quality and less likely to be suspect.

Ask these questions about who produced the site.

- Is it clear who is sponsoring the page? Is there a link to another page describing the purpose of the sponsor?
- Is there a way of verifying the “legitimacy” of the sponsor (phone number, address, etc.)? An email address is not enough.
- Is it clear who wrote the page?
- Is the author a professional or an amateur (educational degrees etc.)?
- If the author is a professional, does he/she have a connection to the Holocaust? Does this connection qualify one as an authority on the Holocaust?
- Is it possible the author is qualified in some aspects of the Holocaust and not in others?
- REMEMBER – Anyone can publish on-line. ANYONE.

Conduct a preliminary overview of the site.

- Does the page display poorly?
- Are there spelling errors or grammatical errors? Is the page poorly written?
- Does the author use excessive profanity?
- Is the material current? Are there dates indicating when the material was written or posted?

Since the Web is “world wide” some sites may have been written by authors unfamiliar with the English language so some spelling and grammatical errors may exist.

Review the site for accuracy – factual errors and sources of data.

- Does the author define “Holocaust”?
- Are there glaring incorrect statements, citations, etc.?
- Does the text include footnotes, photo captions, etc. that can be used to verify information?
- If material is translated, is a source of the translation cited?
- Does the site include links to other sites? If so evaluate that data independently. Check the URL to see if you are still in the same site.

Check for bias and comprehensiveness of data.

- Is the site or author affiliated with a political party, interest group, professional or governmental agency?
- Does the site have a stated mission?
- What is the purpose of the site (entertainment, marketing, etc.)?
- Does the author use persuasive language? Does he/she use precise language or does he/she generalize, exaggerate, or use extreme language?
- Do the background images or graphics display bias? Are graphs and charts clearly and properly labeled?
- How comprehensive is the historical presentation? Does the author emphasize a particular event, experience, or theme?
- How thorough is the documentation? Are primary sources utilized?

What is an Authoritative Source with Accurate Information?

Generally speaking, the following characteristics are indicators of higher overall reliability and validity.

- National Museums and Memorials
- Government Institutions
- Primary Source Documentation, particularly postwar court exhibits with certified translations
- Materials excerpted from or written by prominent historians in the field: Yehuda Bauer, Israel Gutman, Raul Hilberg, Christopher Browning (among others)

Nuremberg Film review

Having watched the film Nuremberg, write a 1-2 page review of the film discussing the accuracy of the film. As a basis for determining accuracy you may use original transcript documents found online, the transcripts from Interrogations by Richard Overy, transcripts from The Anatomy of the Nuremberg Trials, by Taylor, The Anatomy of the Nuremberg Trials, and the oral histories found in Witness to Nuremberg by Bruce A. Stave and Michele Palmer.

Nuremberg The case against the defendant

Select a defendant from the Alphabetical List of Persons. Examine some of the documents available that served as evidence against him.

- ◆ What are the charges against the defendant?
- ◆ Based on the documents you examined, are there other crimes that could have been brought against the defendant?

Complete ONE of the following exercises.

1. Construct a case against the defendant. Write a short 2-3 minute opening statement. Prepare an outline of the case you would present against the defendant citing the evidence you would use. (This is not to be a copy of the original trial transcripts, rather a case written by you using other documents that will serve as evidence against the defendant.)

2. You are a journalist charged with reporting the trial proceedings against one of the defendants. Write a three-part column or radio broadcast covering the case against the defendant and the findings of the tribunal.
